HE SHOWS NO SIGNS OF

Wolfolt slept moderately well last, and ere the faintest rays of sunlight through the bars of his cell and pacing the floor.

His sleep had at times been broken, he was the victim of any nightmare. His repose was disturbed by ghosts, his fellow prisoners were aware of it. Talk in his sleep, neither did he smile. He was first seen by the turnkey, at daybreak, he seemed prodigally tired, appeared the day before. If his countenance with additional wrinkles, the eyes of the sleep faded, faded.

HIS APPETITE NOT IMPAIRED

The accused murderer was provident and wholesome breakfast with evident relish. The first bite of his meal it was announced that the officers were admitted to see him.

They were admitted to see him. They talked on of the society of the whole was silent. Some of the visitors who saw him on the day of anything out of him touching the case, any newspaper reporters tried their process on him without success.

The prisoner was tired and of his attentions at their importunities that he made

KICK OUT THE REPORTERS
This wish was implicitly obeyed by the officers of the jail.

In the afternoon Chief of Police Connelley made a visit to the supposed murderer. He talked to him freely and was surprised when discussing about the details of the tragedy.

THE PRISONER BECOMES LOQUACIOUS
"I am shocked to know that anyone possibly believe me guilty of the crime," he said. "I can anyone for a moment think me capable of murdering my own father? The thought is horrible. I never heard tell of anything like his father."

"I have," Mr. Wilson remarked, "heard of a prisoner curious look."

Wolfkist seemed to take in the meaning of the remark.

SIGNIFICANT EXPRESSION. Colonel Marshall Hatcher came from the same train Saturday night with some two years ago Mr. Hatcher killed Woolfolk, and sold him a press, for which he did not paid. He went in to talk with the folks and asked him several questions about the killing. Woolfolk denied his guilt. Mr. Hatcher piled him with questions, and finally left him. As he was going away, Woolfolk said "Mr. Hatcher got paid now for him." Mr. Hatcher replied "I don't know how much you got. All our estate belongs to me and my family now."

Mr. Hatcher made no reply but went on his way.

A SUGGESTION AS TO THE MURDER OF EDWARDS CONSTITUTION. In the case of convicting Woolfolk of the murder of his wife, it is probable that many of the characteristics of the careless man who shot at the people of the city of Dallas, Texas. In this case as in those cases where the law is broken by the men were apparently close friends, and it was given, and it was given as in that. Might it not be the Texas man who drifted that way, or some one possessed of a similar homicidal tendency? It seems to me that Woolfolk is the murderer. I am confident of the murders should cause peace before conviction.

WHAT ANOTHER CORRESPONDENT SAYS
EDITORS CONSTITUTION: The conclusive proof that Woolfolk is the murderer is the evidence of the old lady. That child could not be a wife against the murderer. It was a child of Woolfolk. He was an ordinary assistant had murdered nine people first impulse would have been to throw the child away and then he would have been the murderer, to have burned the house down and have been to have destroyed his own property, and then he would have been the murderer.

STILL ANOTHER CORRESPONDENT HAS A THEORY
EDITORS CONSTITUTION: It seems to me concerning the murder of his family. The Woolfolk is the murderer of his family. He had not been, when he was a child, covering that his people were dead, he would have been really made out frantic with fear and calling for help. He would have been the murderer.

UNFOUNDED RUMORS.

Last night rumors were flying about streets that Woolfolk had made an attempt commit suicide. A messenger was dispatched by county jail to ascertain if these reports were true, and it was found that they were unfounded whatever. It was also reported that a party of infuriated citizens from Albemarle County had quietly come to Atlanta for the purpose of taking Woolfolk from his cell and lynching him. The messenger could prove that there was nothing whatever in wild rumor.

Feelings of the People of Macon in Regard to the Woolfolk Tragedy.

MACON, Ga., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Yesterday afternoon the people of this city gathered to the Woolfolk tragedy and to feel in much the same manner as the people of other cities.

After reading the papers the people were wrought up that they wished to organize a march to the jail, secure the wretched prisoner and swing him high in the air.

EXPLODE HIS BLOODY DEED.

but when they were convinced that he had been removed to Fulton county jail, they subsided.

It took a great deal of explanation and argument to convince them that he had been moved. Most of them thought that it was enough to see him on the part of the officials keep them from doing anything.

Saturday night from 8 o'clock, was watching at the jail door, just waiting for Sheriff Westcott appear with the prisoner, when have been sound, calling the people together at Woolfolk would have paid the penalty of his unpopularity with his own wrecked life, had he appeared. The man was spirited away by the rear entrance, and effected his escape. Last night an assassin was expected, and tonight, were he here, the jailer could command a corps of guards to protect the jail.

During the day many persons have criticized the action of Judge Simmons in leaving the city for the night in the face of this dreadful tragedy. Every one at Hazard's trial have united in demanding that the bodies of the murderer. They do not feel that the bodies should be allowed to draw the single breath of the pure air of heaven more than is allowed by the immortality of a trial.

and this feeling is shared by a majority of the good people of Macon. The people are thirsting for his blood, and grow angry at the condemnation of a man who has been guilty

The hearts of the people of Bibb county are stirred as they were never stirred before. The trial of Moore lynching is only a year old. When people remember how relentlessly the lynchers were pursued and brought to trial they fail to see why the slow machinery of the law should
